

A striking collection of tables that master the art of disguise

Based on the principles of streamlining and flexibility, Normann Copenhagen has designed a versatile collection of tables, which fit in anywhere due to their great adaptability, from the smallest breakfast nook to the grandest of dining settings. Along with the familiar Form Café Table, Allez, Scala and Lunar's striking designs easily stand out, yet at the same time subtly blend into the existing surroundings.

The collection is based on an ingenious concept around a simple design featuring steel or aluminum frames that can be combined with a wide selection of circular or square tabletops. The elegantly floating tabletops, ranging from 60 to 150 cm in diameter, and the variable-height frames allow the versatile tables to adeptly serve as sideboards, coffee tables or meeting places in restaurants, office spaces as well as dining areas in the home. The collection's main materials such as steel, wood, and natural stone patinate gracefully over time and radiates quality and durability for use in both indoor and outdoor settings. With a simple table frame as a base, the many tabletop options allow for creating bold combinations based on either matching or contrasting structures and finishes.

The variants span from the luxurious and sensual warmth of traditional oak to the stark reflections of raw steel plating, creating a cooler expression with a touch of modern industrial elegance. A refined selection of Italian marble slabs in muted tones of black, white, coffee and sand lend a sense of exclusivity to any decor. Marble is a natural material interspersed with a rich variety of veins and swirls that highlight the inherent beauty of the stone and whose subtle nuances is a beautiful sight to behold. Whereas the oak veneer tabletops are designed for indoor use, the tables with stainless steel and marble tops can also be enjoyed year-round in outdoor settings.

With the launch of this table concept, Normann Copenhagen once again demonstrates the breadth of its furniture collection, satisfying multifarious needs in private homes as well as public spaces. This emphasizes the design company's ambition of creating sustainably produced and long-lasting designs that stay relevant for generations to come.

Allez table

This versatile Allez Table and Chair duo is designed to provide years of use either indoors or outdoors. The Allez table is characterized by sleek, elegant lines from all vantage points and a cylindrical cast iron 3 or 4-legged pedestal base discretely shaped to mimic the curvature of the Allez chair legs. Adjustable feet have been incorporated in the design, making it possible to stabilize it on uneven surfaces. Allez offers flexibility with the choice of either circular or square tabletops made from a broad assortment of materials. Inspired by traditional café tables, Allez includes two tabletop options that are ideal for outdoor use: marble and lightweight, 4mm-thin solid stainless steel. The tabletop is also available in black or natural oak veneer. The many possible combinations allow for an Allez ensemble to complement the existing decor.
